Break time is 10 minutes. Children should remain in their classrooms and not run excessively during this time. Students may bring snacks but must not share them with other children due to allergies and dietary requirements. Children should not make a mess in the classroom. Break times may sometimes be moved if they coincide with ṣalāh times.

Ṣalāh: children should join the imam for ṣalāh and should be in a state of wuḍū' during class times.

Assembly is usually held during Sessions 2 & 3 on the first Monday of every month. The Headteacher will usually address students, and the best-performing students will also be rewarded.

Session changes: teachers have discretion to rearrange sessions on certain days where necessary.

Tracking: progress in Islamic Studies, Manners and Memorising is recorded in the student handbook for parents to follow.

* Islamic Studies is taught at a level and age appropriate to each class.
